Comments from Mark Sanislo: "The portrait of Father on the cover of his book was originally painted and unveiled in 1999 for his 50th jubilee celebration to the priesthood, and today, June 4th is his anniversary date.

Father Reiser was my pastor for most of my lifetime. In his last years not only was he a great confidant but a dear friend. So it was a great honor for me to paint his portrait and will rank as a favorite among the many portraits I have painted.

As part of the commission process Father helped in the portrait design by offering his input with his choices in the color of his vestment, the pose background. and the choices were a reflection of who he was and it comes through in the portrait. His choice a red vestment was purely out of preference for the color but we know from Christian that art red Pentecost, fire represents excitement and suffering.

The stained glass windows in the background of the painting are the windows from inside Epiphany Catholic Church. In the painting they are painted in a different order then how they are in the church. We chose to feature Father's two favorite windows: The Resurrection window and The Epiphany window and to position them prominently in the painting.

Father also chose the pose in the most humble way he wanted to be, standing with his hands folded. I miss Father Reiser greatly but I know he's working hard for us in Gods heavenly kingdom. True to form he still won't be retiring and congratulate him for his award winning book."
